New Release show on June 30th

Posted by WastedZombie - 2007/06/27 10:37

---

Well, after taking last week off, Iostannie and I are back with an awesome line up.

We've got Iron Savior, Paragon, Evidence One and At Vance with their new albums.

We've also got Hyades is a new Italian Thrash band that reminds me of early Testament, Exodus and Slayer.

Make sure to tune in on Friday night at midnight / Saturday morning PST.

Alright! The magic date that we finally did the show was Saturday morning at 1am on the 14th of July. After going on the air an hour late, and not having done the show in several weeks, Iostannie and I where greeted by the chat room metalheads who where hungry to here their requests, and new songs from the following bands.

Band: Iron Savior

Album: Megatropolis

Released: June 30

Song Played: Running Riot

Info: Well, the first thing I noticed as I spun this disc...was that Iron Savior had not changed their sound at all. Did we expect them to? No. Do they really need to? Not particularly. Leave progression to other bands. Iron Savior are fine the way they are with their rather gruff and angry vocals and sleek, spacey, crunchy riffs. This is just solid heavy metal with balls for those who love to bang their heads and pump their fists.

Band: Hyades

Album: And the Worst Is Yet To Come

Released: June 21

Song Played: Buried In Blood

Info: They play thrash, eat thrash, hellâ€ they probably even bleed thrash. Indeed, the Italian five-piece donâ€™t just raise a glass in the direction of Testament, Exodus and Slayer, they smack them around abit and keep on going for more!

Band: Blinded By Faith

Album: Weapons of Mass Distraction

Released: July 10

Song Played: Weapons of Mass Distraction

Info: BLINDED BY FAITH are back with their new studio album, Weapons of Mass Distraction, which is without a doubt their strongest effort yet. They have crafted their most aggressive, yet catchiest work to date, including memorable melodies and with both growling and clean vocals mixed together in harmony by the band's excellent musicianship and songwriting.

Band: Manticora

Album: The Black Circus (Part 2 - Disclosure)

Released: June 26

Song Played: Beauty Will Fade

Info: Manticora is quite the interesting band. It is a power metal band, formed in Denmark in 1996, and while they haven't exactly gained the popularity of some of their power metal brethren they've still soldiered on, releasing six albums in eleven years. The Black Circus Parts 1 (Letters) and 2 (Disclosure) are concept albums revolving around a mysterious travelling in the 19th century. I won't dwell too much on the concept right now, but I will say that it provides a haunting edge to the album.

Band: Abandoned

Album: Thrash You!

Released: June 1

Song Played: Visions Of Death

Info: They may come from the Bay Area, but their sound is from Germany. If you liked their first release last year, then you're gonna love this release from Abandoned. The album Thrash You is the perfect follow up to Thrash Notes.

Band: Between The Frost

Album: Realms Of Desolation

Released: April 3

Song Played: Dominions Of Impaled Beheaded

Info: Fans of Between The Frost rejoice! After 15 years this band finally releases its second album! This is one of the better Black Metal CDs to come out this year so far.

Band: Paragon

Album: Forgotten Prophecies

Released: May 23

Song Played: Hammer Of The Gods

Info: After 2 years, and replacing their Bass Player, Paragon finally releases their CD Forgotten Prophecies. This is the bands 8th CD, and this new CD has got to be their best CD to date.

Band: Korpiklaani

Album: Tervaskanto

Released: June 26

Song Played: Lets Drink

Info: Korpiklaani is back! The wild Finns have again bottled the atmosphere and energy of their live show and injected it into their fourth album. Tervaskanto delivers powerful Folk Metal songs that are immediately absorbed into the bloodstream, instinctively causing neck muscles to headbang. Traditional instruments such as the accordion, fiddle, and flute battle it out with the purest of Metal, spiced with a dash of humppa and large helping of good humor.

Band: Linkin Park

Album: Minutes To Midnight

Released: May 15

Song Played: Bleed It Out

Info: Minutes to Midnight has plenty of quick to please tracks, along with melodic radio fare tunes. If you're a fan, you'll love the new album, if you hated them before, you'll hate 'em even more now.

Band: Vision Divine

Album: The 25th Hour

Released: June 30 (In some places it may be released on July 3)

Song Played: The 25th Hour

Info: Born in 1998 as a solo project of guitarist Olaf Thorsen (Labyrinth), and soon rejoined by singer Fabio Lione (Rhapsody, also former member of Labyrinth), Vision Divine released over the past decade four albums, including the latest masterpiece "The Perfect Machine"™, which transformed them into one of Europe's™ most celebrated metal bands sextet, still run by extraordinary Olaf Thorsen, along with talented vocalist Michele Luppi, is considered today one of the prominent names in the international prog-power movement. "The 25th Hour"™ is the confirmed title for Vision Divine's™ album, the record is a concept based on the diary of the same man who had a lead role in "Stream Of Consciousness"™ and is already described as the band's™ best work to date, a phenomenal mix of powerful guitars, stunning melodies and uncommon technical abilities.

Ten great bands, each with great albums... if you didn't get to hear these bands, make sure you ask me to play them on my Monday show from 5pm to 8pm PST.
