I bought a Shure c606 mic at my local computer store and it works perfectly.. Only cost about $25.. It plugs in directly to the soundcard..

well i have mine semi configured but now i need to learn the program and work with another DJ as i was told. I haven't figured out how to make the mic louder on it i only can get it to like -30 hmm.

lostannie had this problem... she searched the internet and found a 3rd party driver that brought here from a whisper to a roar!

I think a few others have actually gotten physical signal boosters.

I myself only get about -16 with my setup... luckily I have more than 1 computer, and my mic is actually plug into another computer I use as a pre-amp that I run the line-out to the line in on the computer I actually DJ from.

Hope this helps.

hmm now i can't get my mic or sound to work on Sam at all thats what i get for having a vista computer and a trial of sam

Re:Sam Broadcaster

As I said before the quickest thing to do is back up data on computer, wipe vista install xp, then install vista (dual boot) install shoutcast or SAM on XP.

If you have vista and a laptop you wont stand a chance to dj with SAM as the soundcounds they use are utter shit if its a soundmax etc.

The trial version 4 is ment to work on vista anything below version4 your just wasting your time.

The whole way vista does sound is totally different to xp until there is a new shoucast dsp that was built for Vista I suggest you downgrade to xp (dual boot) check this link out. your notice that some people say sam works fine and so will shoutcast on vista if your only streaming music with no dj voice.

If you try to use mic and music at the same time on vista you cant, you can do either one or the other not both sand this is due to the microsoft mix map for sound gone out of vista.

Good stick with XP has Vista is never gonna work unless MS puts back the mixer map.

Vista + Shoucast = Fucked

The End

I just have to get the mic to sound clear.. You SAM users, what settings in the EQ should I be running?? Bypass all the extra stuff??

Re:Sam Broadcaster

Posted by berube - 2008/04/09 16:07

if the mic sounds choppy, be sure to go to your voice FX config. look at the lower left corner where you will see two sliders. i dont rem the title of the sliders, but set the one on the left to 6 and the one on the right to 20ms... hope that helps.

Re:Sam Broadcaster

oh yeah... i think the sliders are for buffers and packets.

Re:Sam Broadcaster

Adjusted those.. Also have it set in the EQ to bypass all the compressors and such..

Hi, I have been running som broadcaster for 3 yrs now. It IS COMPLETELY compatible with windows vista.(ive been using vista ultimate for about a yr now). I started with sam 3 now running sam 4. To me sam is simply the best. There were some issues with dual core but spacial has a download that fixes it. If you would like some assistance I would be happy to lend a hand.

SAM4 supposed to be for Vista/XP, but none of the DJs here at Braingell.com use it on Vista.. Personally I don't have a machine powerfull enough to run Vista.. Sticking with XP for now..

As I said in previous post sam 4 is ment to be used with Vista but if you read spacial forums your find people either have issues with their soundcards or mysql etc etc.

Point is shout is easy and does the job well, I did try sam and hated the over bloated and cpu hungry it also fill the desktop (which isnt a issue now as I have a 28" samsung) but point is shoutcast is so nice simple play a damn song auto crossfade etc what more do you want.

If you want to spend shit loads on Sam and risk seeing if it works on vista with your soundcard fine but the graphice are ugly and dated and it has all this crap you dont need. like a php mysql playlist for people to request lol which always hangs as a file needs to dl from spacial website and takes ages to download.

Anyway its all just over the top spend you money on a nice mic so you dont sound like some of these bad stations going around with tinny nazel breathing restroom sounding voices :cheer:
